

I am a listener of K-Love, and was informed that there is a possibility of a new broadcast service known as Low Power FM that may take priority over current FM translator services. K-Love radio is heard on an FM translator, and the possibility of K-Love being taken off the air if the proposed rules are changed is very disturbing to me.

K-Love has made my life dramatically more positive. I recently moved to a new city far away from friends and family, including my support group of Christians. K-Love has helped make my transition easier by offering the familiar music that I always listen to, as well as their encouraging words and interviews.

The effect on myself as well as the Denver, Colorado community if K-Love was taken off the air would be very negative. K-Love has brought many people together, and I have had the opportunity to meet many new people simply because I have a K-Love bumper sticker on my car and other see it and comment on it. The K-Love community is full of love and friendship, and I wouldn't trade it for anything!

The service provided by K-Love is in the public interest because it brings people together and provides so much information related to my interests including concerts, programs and opportunities that I wouldn't hear about anywhere else. K-Love gives the public an insite on the Christian community that isn't available anywhere else. Through K-Love I am able to learn of community events, and groups in the Denver, Colorado community are able to spread the word of their programs free of charge. It is a great opportunity, and a great organization to provide such options to the community organizations.

I sincerely hope that you reconsider introducing this new broadcast service known as LPFM. In doing so, you would remove K-Love from the air, which is a huge part of my life as well as the Denver, Colorado community's life. We support the radio station in many ways, which is evident in their pledge drives and activities. Please take this letter in consideration, coming from a very big supporter of K-Love and of the Denver, Colorado community.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Juon
